

To whom it may concern,

March 1, 2008

I have known and worked with Tim Fairfield for the past 8 years on a variety of different projects. Together, we designed the competition routes for the ESPN Asian X-Games international climbing event as well as a variety of other television production level climbing events in the United States.

Additionally, over the past three years I have hired him as a professional trainer/consultant for my climbing team, the AZR Ascenders. I am always impressed with his level of expert knowledge and how enthusiastically and effectively he shares it with others. His unrivaled experience as an international competitor, routesetter, trainer and consultant is unmatched in the climbing industry.

Most of all, he is a very motivated person both professionally and personally. Tim lives every day to the fullest, bringing integrity and passion to everything he does. I have nothing but respect for him, and I would recommend his services to anyone.

Sincerely,

Joe Czerwinski
